

About me

Sarah is a qualified counsellor with specific experience working with children and young people. The majority of her work is in educational settings such as schools and universities which has provided her with a wealth of experience working with issues associated with this age and stage of life.

A child centred approach is employed working with the child's needs at the centre of the work. Sarah believes that working alongside the whole family assists in the therapeutic work and process of moving forward towards solutions or working practices for the client.

Sarah is a qualified counsellor and clinical supervisor with a current DBS certificate and a registered member of the BACP. Sarah also lectures in counselling at a local college. Sarah is always happy to provide time to speak on the phone or respond to any queries via email regarding working with her as this can help with going forward with counselling.
